Nepal's civil society evolved into a vibrant movement for defending democracy and human rights during the people's movement in 2006, while the political parties were taking a back seat in the King's autocratic regime. The vacuum of democratic movement was filled in by the NGO Federation, human rights organizations, and natural resource management networks, as well as women, indigenous people, and other marginalized groups throughout the country. The mobilization by these federations and

The main idea about Creative Democracy is that democracy encourages individual capacity building and the interaction among the society. Dewey argues that democracy is a way of life in his work of "Creative Democracy: The Task Before Us" [146] and an experience built on faith in human nature, faith in human beings, and faith in working with others.
